Or faithless words that should fade away
Before my ink is dry.

I paint with the brushes of men who view
This world as a beautiful place,
Or a boresome vale where nothing's new
And hope has fled each face.

I echo the poets whose lines would bind
The souls of men with God,
Or smother the meek aspiring mind
Deeper in dready clod.

Ever am I to all men all
Each man may make of me.
Use me to break Man's earthy pall
And set his spirit free.
